

I am unalterably opposed to any effort by any government agency to control the freedom of the First Amendment to the US Constitution. Satellite radio services, such as XM and Sirius, provide valuable services to the listening public. I, for one, enjoy the entertainment and information my satellite service provides and do not want it limited or curtailed in any way, least of all by some governmental bureaucrat. Leave well enough alone. We have plenty of governmental interference in our lives as it is. Less governed is best governed. Also the NAB does not, cannot, and will not dictate what I listen to on the radio. If the local radio stations played what we wanted to begin with they would not be losing customers and there would not be a Satellite radio. Satellite radio is the new Peoples Radio they only giving us what we want, what is wrong with that?
